Subject : All India One Day Seminar on "Sustainable Sugarcane Practices for Viable Sugar Industry" 6th April 2018, IISR, Lucknow

Dear Member,

Sugar is the second largest agro-based industry in India and a source of livelihood for about 50 million farmers engaged in the cultivation of sugarcane crop. The industry also contributes significantly to the socio-economic development of the nation particularly in the rural areas. The demand for sugar is increasing year on year both from the retail and bulk consumers. With the increasing use of sugarcane in bio-fuels the demand for sugarcane is set to increase in the coming years.

Despite the increasing demand, the industry encounters problems like low yield and recovery from sugarcane, high cost of production, depleting soil fertility status, agro-climatic variations, limitations of resources like water, nutrients, quality seeds and scarcity of farm labour impacting its cultivation and harvesting. For sustainability of the industry, sugarcane cultivation needs to change radically in order to increase sugarcane yield/recovery to sustainably meet the future demand.

Against this background, The Sugar Technologists' Association of India (STAI) in association with Indian Institute of Sugarcane Research (IISR) and National Federation of Co-operative Sugar Factories Limited (NFCSF) is organizing an All India Seminar on 'Sustainable Sugarcane Practices for Viable Sugar Industry' as per the following programme:
